Dear Music Lovers,

Tony Pace opened his one-man concert to a seasoned audience at McKinney Community Concerts in McKinney, Texas, on Saturday, January 20, where he sang and danced his way into their hearts from start to finish. As “The Ultimate Performer” ran through decades of music with his impressions of famous hits, there was never a dull moment. With his stage experience and wit, every song touched at least some of the folks with claps, laughs and waves, not to mention “sing-alongs” to favorite melodies. Tony’s high energy nostalgia captured his audience and kept them on their toes with memories and reminiscence.

The American flag was the centerpiece for more than one patriotic song, while Veterans stood to be honored and Tony’s charitable organization helped raise funds for “Veterans Count.” His original song, “Help Me Make This Place My Home Again,” was a free CD to anyone donating to his charity. A second all-encompassing CD of Tony Pace music featured 22 favorites from many music genres, all available as one autographed souvenir of the concert. Many folks left very happy and volunteered that they thought it was possibly the best show of the whole season thus far for 2017-2018. In fact, many asked that Tony Pace be brought back again to entertain with his very talented and memorable show. And that says a lot about Tony Pace.
